
The gamma pathways are probabilistic at the particle-history level and their relative occurrence depends on energy, composition, and geometry. The impact branch represents the deterministic solution of the declared FSP case, not a probability distribution over real explosive fragments. No relative probabilities are implied.